No problems

24:48 to: Clarissa (UK) - @clissa89
It pains me to do this, but I'm going to bow out of the #team24ot challenge in favour of my physical health and in an attempt to maintain some semblance of occupational balance. I'll be back in a couple hours!

24:48 to: Clarissa (UK) - @clissa89
le hours!

25:16 to: kirstyes (UK)

36:55 to: Helena Culshaw

I have to go into Liverpool for a meeting :(, hope to rejoin later :).

37:46 to: JenOT #2

The sensory side of this is quite interesting to- using it as a legitimate proprioceptive activity for adolescents and adults which can be difficult to find :P

38:04 to: kirstyes (UK)

Any Big Lottery funding still out there?

38:31 to: kirstyes (UK)

Oh Shame ;o(

39:01 to: Samar Hassani

would ecotherapy be helpful for people with psychotic conditions (i.e schizophrenia)

39:47 to: HH

I missed the start, did you use any particular intervention models?

39:49 to: Emma Wlsby

What about autism..... no?

40:04 to: JenOT #2

Did you find any difficulties with stigma and if you did, did you find that people reacted differently to people with different diagnosis? (e.g. severe and enduring vs mood disorders)

40:12 to: kirstyes (UK)

I think tying it into specific research - would that allow you to access research funding - sorry if you've already tried that. I'm still new to finding out about funding

42:00 to: HH

Yes OT intervention models like cognitive-behavioural, compensatory/rehabilitative, psychodynamic etc

42:03 to: Emma Wlsby

could you include them in our projects?

42:05 to: Emma Wlsby

thank you

45:50 to: Helen OTUK

Thanks

45:57 to: kirstyes (UK)

47:45 to: Anna Milser #2

Thank you - very interesting for me. Would love to get involved in something like this.

48:56 to: Paul Bibby

Hi HH, the project didn't follow any specific OT models of practice, not having any initial input from an occupational therapist

49:43 to: kirstyes (UK)

Thank you so much

49:52 to: Wardmans

thanks and good luck!

50:08 to: Shannon
